Dear friend,

Thanks for your
card of May 11. I
am glad to hear you
are occupied with
re-writing and collecting some of your earlier works. I did it also in a certain sense, writing "Metterich's Life"
a second time but
that time in dramatic
form "in movie pictures" which I am abroad will be praisable
for the Hollywood movie Ref. Besides I make
verses as the enclosed

which I should like to have translated into English by Mr. Hermon
Dued or any one else
who were able to save
some of the melodious flavor the little poem may have in the writers mother's tongue. I try also to compose a
new "Life", the life of
another man of course,
a bygone hero of the 19.
century. And I read.
Reading is a great consolation now. Do you know "La légende de St.
Julien l'hospitalier" by Flaubert? I just read
it again, after 25 years
or so, and was still deeper impressed by
this incomparable story than I have been, when I was a young man. —

Thanks also for the sad news. Poor Myra, poor Mombert! But who died
in the last 10 years,
did he lose anything?
Nevertheless, we must live and outlive our destiny. You'll give in,
as I never shall do
in spite of St. Zwig and so many others. We must live, to be shown,
as witnesses of what
had happened to man-
kind, that at the end
the criminals were punished for all, what they had sinned against humanity. They will be punished.

Yours most
cordially
Paul Mombert

There is also for the road news. For the first time the subject, but the chief
did not have any thing
whatsoever, we must give out on the one hand. First five in a thousand.

in the case of the first and
as many others, the
must first be taken,
an witness of it out
had happened to me
the 10 minutes were found had for all, that they had
aimed against him.
10. The will be found
to be.
