dearest of friends

Graz the 20th of 1794

M^r. John de Rupert a friend, a scholar, an acquaintance of mine is coming to vienna to study the laws, he is of a gentle family of Graz: I recommend him to you, if you can be serviceable ^{to him} in something, you will oblige me vastly; and pray recommend him to your brother Joseph too, whom I tell many fine things, and that he might come once to Graz for an amusement.

my dear Brabée. I am not quite well, and now I feel that I grow every day old, my wife is very near to ly in, it is a great shame for her to be in such a situation since she is so old, and she had already 18 children. Pray, don't forget my dear Schulz, if you know somewhat of a place for him, be so kind and let me know of it: he is the best, clever fellow in the world: my duty to your lady and my most humble respect to your brother Joseph the same to the rest of your worthy family, and I'm with the most sincere love your most humble most obed.
