Dear Madam,

We have given our very best consideration to your translation of the novel by Karl Emil Franzos, but find that it is one the suitability of which for this market is extremely doubtful. Hence we are afraid to venture upon its publication and return you the manuscript of the translation with our very best thanks for your kindly having allowed us to see it.

Yours very truly,

T. Fisher Unwin

P.S. On second thoughts it seems best to retain the MS. till we hear from you again. Perhaps you may like us to send it to some other publisher in London. If not, will you kindly send us a money order for the postage?
