My darling!

I wrote to You yesterday from Munich and hope that my lines did find You and Fredy in good health.

A short visit to my brother in law - who sends many kind wishes to You - put me here on board the Danube, from this tranquil place I must write You two lines, because my heart demands it.

The weather is so bad today as my English - but never mind - You will be kind enough to accept the good will.

If rain and storm and coldness continues, I shall stop only two days in Switzerland, where I am going tomorrow, supposed that I get free passage as till now.

I think of You and fondly every hour and long to have You both with me.

Heaven may give You sunny days. It is quite changed since yesterday,
it may change again -
"tout casse, tout passe, tout
sage" the weather too.

I embrace You tenderly -
and fondly
Lewis

Many compliments to Your Sister and her family
as well as to our other relations
